oupled by Mr O. E. Ross, and was surprised to find Mr Ross lying on the floor with in the ballroom and in the drawing room, a revolver beside him. He at once reported the matter to Mr Farmer, who found that Mr Ross had shot himself. Surgeon-Colonel Preston and Dr Cowio were speedily in attendance, but it was evident from the first that little could be done, although Mr Ross was still alive. He was taken to the Government Civil Hospital by the complete description. The supper police, and died shortly after admission. The revolver found beside him was loaded n every chamber, only one chamber having been discharged. The builet had entered at the right temple and penetrated the brain, lodging near the left temple. No one heard the report of the revolver. It is difficult to account for the rash act. Mr Ross bore a high character, had been engineer of and had just left the ateamer Chingtu, trading beto leave for England by the P. and O. a native of Lancashire.

A MOST successful experiment, in order to test the durability of a gun made of Kamaishi pig iron, has been carried out, says the Jopan Mail, at the Heruki range in Senshin. One of two coast defence guns which had for some time been in course of construction at Osaka Arsenal, was recently completed and tried. According to the report presented by the Superintendent of the Arsenal to the Minister of War, the gan was submitted to the process of increasing the weight of the missile and the charge at each loading until it reached the 56th round, when the gun burst. The report further says that the result is very satisfactory and much better than in the case of the gun made of Italian pig-iron, suitable for ordusace has fully been proved. It is said that the result will be laid before the Board of Artillery and that the iron will be farther tested. [This mode of 'bursting' big guns is somewhat different from that said to have been adopted lately by the Chinese. - En. C.M.
